“LIKE THE ROSE, I FLOURISH”

TRANSLATION OF RICHMOND
HILL’S OFFICIAL MOTTO

The sweet, ambient scent of roses ever-so-slightly perfumes the air in Richmond Hill, a decidedly distinctive town that flourishes with arts, culture and bountiful blooms.

This fragrant aura dates back to the early 1900s, when florists flocked from all over the country to Richmond Hill’s burgeoning greenhouses, its rose and flower industry originally placing it on the map.

By 1919, Richmond Hill had organically come to be known as a rose-growing capital, aptly adopting the motto “En la rose, je fleuris” (“Like the rose, I flourish”).

Today, the area surrounding Bayview and 19th has maintained a friendly, down-to-earth quality, deeply rooted in arts and culture, a shining example of which is the world-renowned David Dunlap Observatory - a link between the thriving land on which it sits, the community surrounding it, and the endless, star-studded skies. Coupled with a vast array of amenities, all within arms’ reach, Richmond Hill is a quiet testament to the beauty of life
